The round thing in front of you is a steering wheel, it directs the car. You should use two hands.

Hyatt in Rosslyn has rooms. Just across the bridge from DC, you could walk it. It is also a Metro station so you can take that into DC if it is running, and leave your car by the hotel.

If the metro stays up and running, get a map of it , stay somewhere outside of town near a metro station, choose one that drops off at union station. thats only a few blocks walk from the capital building and all the other pedes. keep lots of ones in your pocket for the metro rides. And hope for hope, the mayor doesn't shut down the metro. I wouldn't think so since it's a weekday. I do this for all DC protest.

Do you have a way up there? I'm booked in arlington from the 5th to the 7th. I'm getting there the 4th so gonna have to rough it out in my car for one night. More than happy to meet up on the 5th!

Oh, be prepared for Google to turn off directions to White House (they turned off directions to get to Stop the Steal marches). I'd get an atlas or screenshot maps.

Hi fren! If you are looking for a hotel, check out Arlington. There are hotels near the Rosslyn Metro Stop and in Crystal City. Both are only three miles to the White House, both will have restaurants open, and I bet hotels aren't sold out there. It's also a safe area. See you soon!

Use the typical internet hotel booking sites and look for hotels in Northern Virginia - Fairfax County or Prince William County. The route in along I-66 has plenty of hotels near the exits, especially starting in Manassas. Better to sleep in Virginia than DC proper. I just searched priceline.com for hotels in "Fairfax, VA" and many are available for under $100 per night. Manassas, VA and Falls Church, VA and Arlington, VA are also good cities to base a search on.

If you stay in VA, of course, you will need to have a plan to get into town on the 6th.

Get a cheap hotel somewhere outside DC in Virginia. Drive and park at BBC and my metro station and use that to get into DC. Like maybe stay in Springfield and park at Franconia-Springfield metro.

Courtyard Marriott in Arlington has rooms, rates have gone way up. Probably not many left, recommend booking now. They have onsite parking and you can take a shuttle to the metro stop, metro into DC.

Whatever you do don't stay at the Best Western in Fredricksburg, VA. It's a disaster!

Don't try to get a hotel in DC proper, it will cost you a fortune at this point. You can try Arlington, VA and Linthicum, MD are places I've stayed outside of DC proper and easy to get into DC via the metro.

The rule of threes: three minutes without air; three hours without shelter (clothes or proper camp); three days without water; three weeks without food. Shelter is your focus, water next. You can shit your pants and eat cats for the rest.
